

I am outraged at what the National Association of Broadcasters is trying to do to limit the services provided by satellite radio. Satellite radio is a paid subscription service and should not be subject to the same rules and restrictions as normal radio broadcasting. What business does the NAB have in trying to dictate what I can and cannot listen to in my own home or car? Radio had their chance to hold my interest, and sold out to the corporations in the name of higher profits. Satellite radio meets my needs with a better quality signal and product.

Sincerely,
Chris Sargent
